© 2025 - Bringing Stories to Children in Need

Goal of the charity organization:

Donation of books to children from foster care in Europe.

Bootstrap components used:

- navbar - with a logo, text and dark blue background.
- container - ensures consistent spacing and responsiveness.
- grid system(rows and columns) - used for products and form layout.
- cards - displays containers with images, text, and equal height.
- buttons - Add to Cart, Remove buttons with hover elements.
- list group - displays cart items in a bordered list with flexbox for layout.
- form elements - responsive form with grid, input styling, required fields and submit button.
- datalist - provides autocomplete dropdown for the country input.
- footer - uses a container for centering.
- classes used - d-none to hide/show sections, flexbox for aligning cart items, spacing (mt-5, mb-3, me-2) for margins and padding.

How JS works:

On main page, it iterates through the product array to create book cards with “Add to Cart” buttons and appends them to #product-list. Clicking these buttons adds items to the cart array, displays temporary notifications, and refreshes the UI via updateCart(), which rebuilds the #card-items list, calculates total, and hides the cart if empty. Removes buttons, splices items from the cart and updates the display. The checkout process hides the cart and reveals a form. Upon submission, it validates inputs like required fields, email, phone, country from european countries data list, and card digits, then computes discounts(15 % for 3+ books) and tax(10 %) before showing confirmation details. Event listeners handle clicks and form submits, with DOM manipulation for updates.
